“On behalf of our entire board, I would like to thank all of this year’s board candidates for their commitment to CoBank,” said Everett Dobrinski, chairman of the board. “CoBank benefits greatly from having a board of directors that not only reflects the bank’s national scope and the diverse industries it serves, but also shares CoBank’s passion for serving rural America. We look forward to working with the executive management team to continue building CoBank’s foundation of strength and stability in the coming year and positioning the bank for long-term success.”

Also today, CoBank announced that Michael S. Brown will join the board as an appointed director, effective January 1, 2017. Brown will succeed Barry Sabloff, a retired banking executive who was appointed to the board in 2005 and has served as the board's designated financial expert.

Brown is a retired banking executive who served in a number of executive positions for J.P. Morgan including managing director and global head of multinational coverage, Asia Pacific corporate banking head and chief operating officer and branch manager of J.P. Morgan Securities based in Tokyo. Brown has held leadership roles with the American Chamber of Commerce in Hong Kong, the International Bankers Association in Japan and served on the executive committee of the U.S. Korea Business Council. He holds a bachelor's in finance from Indiana University and a master's in management from the Kellogg School of Management at Northwestern University.

"Mike's global perspective and deep understanding of banking and finance will be enormously valuable for our board, and we're grateful he has accepted our appointment," Dobrinski said. "We are also deeply grateful to Barry Sabloff and extend heartfelt thanks to him for his many years of service to CoBank."

The bank uses an independent Nominating Committee to develop a slate of qualified director candidates for each election. No current board member may serve as a member of the Nominating Committee. No member of management sits on the CoBank board.
